Late Season Gardening
with Barbara Gregerson—MSU Extension

Planting a vegetable garden does not have to be a springtime activity only. Many of our favorite vegetables can be put in, either as seeds or transplants, in the late summer or early fall for fresh produce to harvest in September and October.

There will be a hands-on planting activity and participants can choose their seeds from the seed library at PCPL !

Registration is required as space and materials are limited.

Call the library at 734-878-3888 or visit www.pinckneylibrary.org for information or to register.
